Market drivers of the Diversified Portfolios

It was a savage month for global markets. US markets in particular were hit hard and at one point on track for their worst month since March 2009. However, they steadied and closed out the final few days solidly to limit the damage. It ended up being the worst trading month since mid-2011, with the Dow losing 5.1%, S&P sliding 6.2%, and the NASDAQ dropping 9.4%.

Up the Stairs, Down the Elevator

(Pink bars are the correction of the past 20 years, green bars are the bull markets of the past 20 years. Figures are the gains and loss during each period.)

Looking through the intra-month volatility to the historical data, and what gives us confidence as longer-term value investors is that US markets, on average, experience a correction (a 10% or more move) once a year. This goes all the way back to 1900. Better still, fewer than 20% of these corrections turn into bear markets. Furthermore, US equities have delivered positive returns for 28 out of the last 37 years, or 75 per cent of the time.

We think October created an opportunity for longer-term international exposure.

“THE ASX, ON AVERAGE, HAS EXPERIENCED A CORRECTION EVERY FOUR YEARS OVER THE PAST TWENTY YEARS.”

The ASX was also caught up in the October rout and technically corrected if we take the August 29 high to the October low, which marked a 10.4% loss. Again, for the ASX as well, there are positives to be taken from October.

The ASX, on average, has experienced a correction every four years over the past twenty years. Over the same period, it has experienced a bull market (a gain of 20% or more) 5 times.

Up the Stairs, Down the Elevator

(Salmon line: total returns over the past 20 years, additional figures are the total return during each bull market)

The ASX also remains the highest yielding market of the 23 MSCI world markets, meaning, total returns remain a huge positive for the ASX overall. That means it will continue to be a solid investment market in the coming years.

October was also a perfect illustration of why one should never put all their investment ‘eggs’ into one ‘basket’. All asset classes found sellers in October, however, the capital erosion experienced in equities was far sharper than that we saw in cash and fixed interest.

October is a great example as to why diversification should be core to any investment strategy. And that’s why InvestSMART offers diversified portfolios.

Why You Dont Put All Your 'Eggs' in 1 Basket

Australian residential property fell further in October, declining 0.6% to be down 4.6% year-on-year. Drilling into the figures, and looking at the capital cities, it remains a tale of Sydney and Melbourne versus the rest.

Sydney fell 0.7% in October to be down 7.4% over the year, while Melbourne also fell 0.7% over the month to be down 4.7% over the year. Brisbane and Adelaide bucked this trend to be up on the month and the year. A caveat from the property data was rental income. Both commercial and residential rents actually rose according to the September quarter inflation read.

Global fixed income markets also faced headwinds in October as the US Federal Reserve all but confirmed December will see a further 25-basis point rise to the Federal Funds rate. The statement also showed that 2019 will likely see three, possibly four, more 25-basis point increases.

US 10-year Treasury yields hit 3.25% on this news. This spread into fixed income markets across the world, pushing markets lower. The Australian fixed income market, however, remained steady as the RBA held the cash rate at 1.5% for the 26th consecutive month. The RBA is showing no signs the status quo will shift over the coming 12 months. We expect Australian fixed income to outperform global peers as further selling in US bond markets is likely.
