DISCLAIMER While every effort has been made to calculate performance in the most accurate way, there were necessarily some assumptions and limitations. In particular when allocating cash flows (from buying/selling stocks & dividends) to calculate the performance they were grouped into the nearest six-monthly period ending either 30 June or 31 December from when they occurred. This publication is general in nature and does not take your personal situation into consideration. You should seek financial advice specific to your situation before making any financial decision. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. We encourage you to think of investing as a long-term pursuit. COPYRIGHT© InvestSMART Publishing Pty Ltd 2018. Dear Member,

If we had to reduce 17 years of toil, including 531 Buy recommendations, a great deal of sweat and a few tears into one solitary number, that number would be 14.3%.

Independently verified by Ernst & Young, this number represents the average annual return* of all our recommendations over the last 17 years.

RECOMMENDATIONS SUMMARY
	Number*	Returns (per year) (%)^
Buy	409	15.4
Speculative Buy	122	8.5
Subscribe	16	7.7
Total recommendations (excl. Subscribe)	531	–
Total annual return (per year) (excl. Subscribe)	–	14.3
S&P/ASX 200 Total Returns Index (per year)*	–	9.1
Outperformance	–	5.2

* Total recommendations between 1 June 2001 and 30 June 2018, not dynamic ^Between 1 June 2001 and 30 June 2018

How does that compare with the overall market? Pretty well. Between 1 June 2001 and 30 June 2018, the S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index (adjusted for franking) returned 9.1% pa*, meaning Intelligent Investor's return was more than 5% higher.

That outperformance has huge implications. A $100,000 investment in the S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index (adjusted for franking) on 1 June 2001 would have produced $442,765 by 30 June 2018. If you'd invested in our average recommendation over that period, you'd have ended up with $980,896, more than twice as much.

Now here's the caveat: replicating the recommendations in this and previous reports is impossible. Members simply cannot follow every buy and sell recommendation. Apart from their sheer number, the comparison assumes you don't have to sell any stocks to buy the ones we recommend.

So whilst this report is a transparent, verified tool for evaluating every recommendation we've ever made, as a proxy for our overall stock-picking skills it falls a little short.

The following table shows the performance of our Equity Growth and Equity Income portfolios, is a more realistic guide. Our portfolios began life as models back in 2001 but have been accepting real money since 2015.

MODEL PORTFOLIO PERFORMANCE AS AT 30 JUNE 2018
	Equity Growth Portfolio (%)	S&P/ASX 200 T.R. Index (%)	Outperformance (%)
1 year	8.8	13.0	–4.2
5 years	12.1	10.0	2.1
10 years	12.8	6.4	6.4

1 year	8.4	13.0	–4.6
5 years	12.1	10.0	2.1
10 years	8.1	6.4	1.7
S.I. (per year)^	12.3	8.3	4.0

* Adjusted for 0.97% p.a. theoretical since 2001, fees as charged on the SMAs from 1 July 2015. ^Growth Portfolio inception date 7 August 2001, Income Portfolio inception date 10 July 2001.

They operate under the same constraints as your own investments and we've added theoretical costs up to 2015 in line with the real 0.97% a year the typical portfolio has incurred since. Hence they offer a more reliable and accurate real-life comparison. Happily, they also show a respectable outperformance.

The internal rate of return methodology used in this report is unchanged from last year. The report covers a financial rather than calendar year-end and returns include franking credits, a valuable component of returns. Our benchmark, the S&P/ASX 200 Accumulation Index, has been similarly adjusted to make a like-for-like comparison.

Lastly, Strong Buy, Long Term Buy and Buy recommendations are rolled into one 'Buy' category, which while slightly reducing our historic performance and the number of recommendations reported, makes the report easier to digest (see What we mean by Buy, Hold and Sell).

I hope you find this year's Recommendations Report interesting. Please let us know any thoughts you might have via our Ask the Experts forum or by calling on 1300 880 160.

Yours sincerely,

James Carlisle,
Research Director,

Background

Reporting performance is a vexed issue. We all know that past performance alone is not a reliable indicator of future returns but, over the long term, what else can one use?

That's one part of the equation. The other concerns transparency. We want to clearly communicate why we make the decisions we do and present our record for all to see. Through the 500-plus articles we publish each year, the website is a vast and accurate historical record of our activity. With this detailed, independently verified account of all our recommendations, there really is nowhere for us to hide.

Analyse the business

Our approach to analysing stocks is well documented. We review the business model behind each company to assess the stock's underlying value. If the current market price is substantially below our valuation, we'll recommend it. If not, we won't.

Our Buy recommendations, which form the bulk of our reviews and represent the type of stocks in most members' portfolios, have trounced the market, returning 15.4% a year between June 2001 and June 2018. That compares favourably with the S&P/ASX 200 Total Return Index's 9.1% return over the same period.

Our performance over the past 17 years speaks for itself. The annual return from our two positive types of recommendations (excluding 16 IPO 'subscribe' recommendations, which provided an average annual return of 7.7%) was 14.3%. With a backdrop that includes events like The Global Financial Crisis (GFC), the Sovereign Debt Crisis and Brexit, that's more than respectable.

That said, it's unrealistic to think any member would act on every single recommendation, which is why our Equity Income and Equity Growth portfolios (returning 12.3% and 9.4% a year respectively since inception) offer a better insight into how a 'real world' portfolio would have performed.

Methodology

This is our eleventh independently verified performance report and it's worth quickly repeating why we changed how returns are calculated in the 2011 report (for a full explanation please see the 2013 Recommendations Report).

The previous method was quite simple. Dividends received during the life of a recommendation were added to the price at which the stock was sold. This figure was then divided by the purchase price to establish the total return, from which the compound annual return was calculated. This was done for each change in positive recommendation. The overall performance figure was the arithmetic average of all those individual returns.

Trouble is, the reported performance using this method could be quite different to the actual outcome you might get from actually following our recommendations. How so?

The previous methodology ignored the time value of dividends. A $1 dividend received in 2002 is clearly worth more than a $1 dividend received today, but the previous method didn't distinguish between the two. The simple average doesn't take into account the duration of investment, which is not an accurate reflection of reality.

So in 2011 we switched to calculating performance using an internal rate of return (IRR) methodology, described in detail in How to calculate portfolio returns. An IRR accounts for the amount of money you have invested and the compounding of gains or losses over time.

Notes to the schedule of performance statistics

The following sets out the methodology and assumptions on which the Schedule of Performance Statistics ('The Schedule') is based:

1. The Schedule includes recommendations contained in issues 80 to 515 of the Intelligent Investor magazine printed fortnightly, or made available online at intelligentinvestor.com.au, eurekareport.com.au and investsmart.com.au (the "InvestSMART Group websites") between 1 June 2001 and 30 June 2018.
2. New positive recommendations are only included when they are first recommended. Recommendations for the same company will only appear multiple times where a security has been downgraded to a non-buy recommendation (such as "Hold") and then subsequently upgraded.
3. Returns comprising dividends, special dividends, distributions and capital returns take into account the taxation implications of franking credits by grossing up all dividends.
4. Returns from dividends have been grouped into six month intervals (31 December and 30 June) based on the closest interval date to when the dividend was paid.
5. Capital returns have been treated as a dividend rather than as an adjustment to the price of the security where capital returns fell within the holding period. Where capital returns fall outside the holding period no adjustment has been made.
6. For ease of presentation and consistency Take Part Profit ('TPP') recommendations have been treated as a full sale with the performance return calculated from the positive recommendation to the TPP recommendation. While the performance of individual securities changes if performance is calculated to a full Sell recommendation, or the cut-off date of 30 June 2018 if not sold, in aggregate the effect on returns of the portfolio is not considered material.
7. Due to a change in the publishing regime, recommendations are taken from the time they are posted to the InvestSMART Group websites.
8. Prices for open (not sold) recommendations are as at 29 June 2018 (the last trading day before the end of the financial year).
9. Purchase prices used in calculations are the price when the recommendations were posted to the InvestSMART Group websites.
10. Calculations are based on prices and dividends for one (1) security in each company for each recommendation. Performance statistics, however, are calculated on an adjusted basis such that an equivalent amount is invested in each recommendation.
11. No account has been taken of the different levels of risk associated with holding different securities.
12. No consideration has been given to portfolio weightings for each recommendation.
13. The Schedule has been prepared with reference to and where applicable, compliance with ASIC Guidance Statement on the Use of Past Performance in Promotional Material and IFSA Standard No 6.00 on the Calculation and Presentation of Returns.
14. The total return is the return achieved over the holding period due to price changes and inclusive of dividends.
15. The annual return is the internal rate of return achieved over the holding period. If less than one year, there is no "annual return".
16. The performance return for holding periods of more than one year is the annual return achieved over the holding period. For holding periods of less than one year, this is the total return.
